The city of Lawrence is widely recognized throughout the state of Kansas for its dedication to education, the arts and culture. As a home to two universities, higher education, energy, enthusiasm and opportunity for the good life seem to be in great supply.

History books, glossy promotional materials and friendly conversation, however, do not include talk of the daily, subdued struggle of some of the city’s residents. These community members, the more than 14,000 individuals who can’t afford health care, represent the population that HCHC exists to serve.

Since I joined the HCHC team in 2008, this organization has been in a state of constant growth and change. This rings no truer than it did in 2011. Despite a slow economy, HCHC experienced enormous growth allowing us to meet more of the demand for health care for the underserved community.

God has been present inside HCHC’s walls from the beginning, and we have reason to believe he’s not done working yet. Thank you for letting him work through you.

Sincerely,
Jon Stewart

Grew.
In 2011, HCHC reported a total of 5,016 individuals receiving services. The average number of families served monthly by its food pantry increased from 61 families per month to 176 families per month.

Changed.
In March 2011, we changed our name to Heartland Community Health Center. Mike Fairchild of Dezination designed HCHC’s current logo.

Hired.
HCHC hired a new medical director, nurse practitioner and behavioral health specialist in order to increase its capacity and continue offering holistic health care.

Developed.
HCHC’s behavioral health specialist provides behavioral health screenings and brief therapies to patients right in the exam room, ensuring holistic health care for each patient.

Partnered.
In 2011, HCHC developed new partnerships with Lawrence Memorial Hospital, The Bert Nash Community Mental Health Center, Catholic Charities, the Lawrence-Douglas County Health Department, Lawrence Family Vision Clinic, the Sunflower Foundation and many other community organizations and churches.

Thank you to the countless volunteers who come to HCHC every morning, afternoon, evening and weekend to care for the needs of underserved community members. Volunteer leaders in HCHC’s medical clinic and food pantry have shaped HCHC into what it is today. Without your sacrificial and generous support, HCHC would not exist.

THANK YOU.
